His fists are justified. He is the Big Boss. The Dragon strikes back at his greatest.

SYNOPSIS

At his very youth, Lee Lung saw with his own eyes the brutal death of his parents in the hands of the bandits headed by Sek-King. Sek-King even took away Lee's infant sister and brought her up as his own daughter.

Lee practiced martial-arts under the supervision of a drunken master. He never had an easy time for Lee as his life and training were so unusual.

He practiced for years to be close to perfect. Then he set off for the vengeance. Siu-Ching, a neighbor in love with Lee, wouldn't leave herself alone from the high risk Lee was taking.

Thirsting for the blood of his enemies, Lee wandered. Many times, he fought for justice and righteousness.

The bandits were experts in various styles of kung-fu. Their life-and-death challenges were not the end for Lee - as Sek-King was the invincible counterpart Lee had to face in the infernal showdown.

Only chance and wit rather than styles were counted for Lee's victory.
