SYNOPSIS

It's the 1920's, and in the snow bound Manchuria.

Kao-Ying sells information on the mining operation in Manchuria to the Japanese Intelligence Agencies. He's rewarded with significant quantity of jewelry.

Kao-Ying asks Lee-Yi to guard the valuables for him. Lee resents Kao so he steals the jewelry and hides it in the snow mountain. Instead, he intends to transfer it to the anti-Japanese secret societies.

Lee drunk like a dead log tells the secret to his intimate friend Lai-Kit. Lai crazy for the jewelry, kills Lee and seizes the map of the jewelry.

Kao-Ying is angry at the loss. Investigation reveals Lai to be the most possible suspect. He is stubborn and his eyes are disenabled.

Mining the jewelry becomes impossible for Lai. He lives a hermit with his only daughter Yi-Ping. Lee-Yi's son Dragon Lee grows up expertise in martial arts. He learns of the true account of his father's death. He sets out searching to revenge on Lai-Kit.

By chance, he saves Yi-Ping on the way. He is warmly invited to be a guest of the Lais. Lai-Kit is shocked when Dragon tells his motives of wandering. He attempts on the life of Dragon. Dragon is mad for vengeance then. But Yi-ping begs Dragon to spare her father's life.

Lai-kit shameful for his evil deeds, sets off to kill Kao-Ying. Kao and his brother are tough and Lai is slaughtered.

Dragon and Yi-Ping challenge the Kao brothers and a death duel becomes inevitable.
