SYNOPSIS

The Shaolin Institute, a leading training camp of martial arts founded for generations in Twin Dragon Town in Southern China, having been famous for its glory, loyalty and righteousness, is now headed by Tiger Yeung.

After the downfall of Ching Dynasty, Bear Tiu and his sister Black Butterfly take over Twin Dragon Town as their base to smuggle opium and to trade ammunition. Even though Tiger Yeung is very angry at them, he is too old to deal with them. This situation is expected to change until Jaguar Kong returns to his home town.

Jaguar, an outstanding student of the Shaolin Institute, now a provincial police inspector, was assigned a mission to investigate Bear Tiu. The moment Jaguar steps in Twin Dragon Town, he immediately encounters a series of fights.

Bear realizes that his banditti could never win; he then takes a chance to kidnap Jaguar's sister. While raiding on Bear's fort, Jaguar is doublecrossed by his friend Robert Tin.

The brave never die. Physical pains to Jaguar mean nothing. He is able to resist, fighting against Black Butterfly and save his sister.

Jaguar becomes cautious, thinking over the whole plot. Instead of being active, he turns to be passive, keeping patient enough to wait for the best chance and the right timing, meanwhile he trains himself up, alert in every second.

Face to face with furious ultimatum, the hardest challenge between Jaguar and Bear is a must. Before Twin Dragon Town is restored to peace, rivalry never ends.
