An Outstanding and Entertaining Film

SYNOPSIS

It is a modern war story portraying mankind's age-old passions for violence, revenge, greed and slaughter—but now with twentieth century weapons as well.

Set in Vietnam at the Fall of Saigon, Cobra, a young tough and brave Thai soldier, was assigned a suicidal mission by his government to get General Thieu away from the victorious Viet-Cong. Cobra has the loyal support of his comrades-in-arms, young mercenaries and soldiers, and together they battle against the enemy, led by the incomparably brutal Colonel Hial.

Cobra and his men link up with a young woman soldier, Lan Ba, and after successfully abducting General Thieu from his captors, they all flee from Vietnam only to become stranded on an island which turns out to be a leper colony.

Meticulously, Colonel Hial and his army pursue Cobra, his men and General Thieu. General Thieu has desperately important secret information concerning the names of Viet-Cong secret agents in Thailand on microfilm concealed in his artificial leg. Hial is determined to get that microfilm. A campaign of violent and terrifying slaughter of Cobra's men in the leprosy-ridden jungle is must to be seen.

Ironically General Thieu is killed by the U.S. Marines sent by unknown power and Hial never gets his microfilms. Finally, Cobra and his few remaining supporters succeed in escaping from the island in a tiny boat.
