SYNOPSIS

The Abbot of Shaolin is involved in Anti-Manchu activities. From the Imperial Court Eagle Han is sent to get rid of The Abbot. Having had his job done, Eagle Han seizes an invaluable Buddhist scripture from the Temple.

Ming leaves the Temple to seek help from the Anti-Manchu societies. On the way, she meets Swallow Tin of the Beggar's Gang. They save Jade Chow from the Manchu soldiers.

From the Secret Society comes Lui, who admires and follows Ming.

The Four arrives at the market place where they beat the baddies who savage the Chu sisters. The group expands to six.

Mao and Yip become rivals fighting for the love of their kung-fu school mate who is later executed by the Manchu. Broken hearted, both become Buddhist in Shaolin.

The Eight are drilled in various styles of Kung-fu. They vow to revenge the death of the Abbot.

One rainy night, two girl Ninjas visit the Temple. They were daughters of the Abbot's concealing in the Temple to escape from the pursuit of the Manchu.

The Ten practices hard. The time come for a showdown between the Ten and the under men of Eagle Han. Half of them die with the remaining exhausted. Luckily, Chong of the Secret Society, arrives in time to join the Incredible ten in the bloody fight against Eagle Han.

The Oriental beauties become incredibly rough and tough - no man can stop them.
